The Daily Courant.

Tueſday, July 27. 1708.

From a Dutch Gazette.

Breſlau, July 12.

THE Imperial Commiſſioners having receiv'd new Inſtructions from Vienna, relating to the Extention of the Treaty of Alt-Ranſtad, there have been ſeveral Conferences on that Subject between them and Baron Stalenheim. We are inform'd that the Principal Points remaining in Diſpute, are theſe following. 1. There are in Sileſia ſeveral Churches which formerly were in the Poſſeſſion of the Proteſtants, and which are not reſtor'd to them; among others that of Lignitz, to which conſiderable Revenues belong. The King of Sweden demands, that this laſt Church may be made a great School, or ſort of College, for the Proteſtant Youth. The Jeſuits (who are in preſent Poſſeſſion of it) would keep it, and alledge, that this Church was formerly a Chappel properly and ſolely belonging to the Lord of the Place, and that the Lordſhip it ſelf accruing afterwards by a rightful Title to the Emperour, his Imperial Majeſty has of Courſe the ſole Right of this Church, as being his own proper Chappel. 2. The King of Sweden demands, that the Emperour allow the free Exerciſe of their Religion to the Proteſtant Inhabitants of that Part of Sileſia which was not included in the Treaty of Weſtphalia. His Imperial Majeſty is willing to allow 6 Churches to be built for thoſe Proteſtants, on Condition the like Number of Churches elſewhere be given back to the Roman-Catholicks: This will not ſatisfy the King of Sweden, who declares this Point to be an Extention of the foreſaid Treaty which he had reſerv'd to himſelf. 3. That Treaty imports, that the Proteſtants ſhall not on Account of their Religion be excluded from civil Employments, provided they are qualified for them in other Reſpects: The K. of Sweden is apprehenſive that theſe general Expreſſions will be evaded, and the Proteſtants totally excluded thoſe Employments; he therefore demands, that they may take Turns with the Roman-Catholicks in thoſe Employments, and ſo make an alternate Succeſſion. In Oppoſition to this 'tis urg'd on the Part of the Emperour, that it would be reſtraining his Right of Soverainty; and that he cannot be oblig'd to do more than to chooſe ſuch Perſons only (without reſpect to one or other Religion) as are beſt qualify'd for Employments. 4. The ſaid Treaty importing, that all the Members of the Proteſtant Conſiſtories ſhould be of their Perſwaſion, and the Emperour having given Order for a Roman-Catholick to preſide in each of thoſe Conſiſtories, the King of Sweden demands that the ſaid Order be revok'd, alledging that the Proteſtants ought to be left freely to themſelves in the management of their Church-Diſcipline. To this the Imperial Commiſſioners reply, that the Emperour as Soveraign, has a Right to appoint whatever Perſon he thinks fit, to preſide in all Courts within his Dominions; and that he never made any Treaty which depriv'd him of that Right.

Vienna, July 14. The Queen of Portugal, before her Marriage, ſign'd an Act of Renunciation of her Right of Succeſſion to the Hereditary Countries of the Houſe of Auſtria. The States of Hungary aſſembled at Presburg having finiſh'd their Repreſentation of the Grievances of the Kingdom, and ſent it here to Court, many of the Members are gone to their reſpective Places of Abode, intending to return to the Diet, as ſoon as they hear the Emperor's Reſolution concerning their Grievances is arriv'd at Presburg. 'Thoſe Grievances have not yet been 'conſider'd in Council; but we learn, that 'tis not 'demanded in them that any Alteration ſhould be 'made in the Houſe of Auſtria's Right of Hereditary Succeſſion to the Crown of Hungary; nor 'that the Forreign Troops ſhould all be withdrawn 'out of the Kingdom: But, that the Emperour 'ſuffer his Hungarian Subjects to enjoy all their 'Rights and Privileges, and by a publick Edict 'Solemnly promiſe on his Royal Word ſo to do: 'The Imperial Court do not appear unwilling to 'enter into that Engagement. Prince Ragotzi, Count Berezeni, and many other of the diſcontented Hungarian Nobility, are arrived at Neuhauſel, where their Army lyes in a Readineſs for action, they having laid ſeveral Bridges over the Waag. On the other hand, the Imperialiſts make Preparations for ſome Enterprize, having ſent ſeveral Pieces of Cannon to Presburg, and laid up great quantities of Ammunition and Proviſions in that Place; ſo that nothing hinders either Army from acting vigorouſly, but the exceſſive overflowing of the Danube and the Waag by the great Rains that have fallen lately in thoſe Parts. The Prince of Dietrichſtein, Maſter of the Horſe to the Emperour, and one of the Knights of the Golden Fleece, is dead. The Marquis of Neri Guadagni is arriv'd here, with the Character of Envoy from the Great Duke of Tuſcany.

Dublin, July 19. They write from Caſtlehaven the 14th Inſtant, that a French Privateer of four Guns attempted to land by Glendore, to ſieze and carry away a Ship belonging to Cheſter call'd the Unicorn, bound home from Bilboa; but the Enemy were hinderd by a Party of Men led by a Son of Collonel Townſend: They Landed afterwards at Squinch Iſland, between that Harbour and Glendore, took off 50 Sheep and kill'd a Horſe: Then they attempted to land at Caſtlehaven, but were hinderd by a Party of Men. There is alſo on that Coaſt another French Privateer of 24 Guns: From Cork of the 16th Inſtant they write, that the Wedneſday before came into that Harbour the Monk Man of War and one Tranſport, parted from the reſt of the Fleet. From Kinſale of the 16th, that the Day before came into that Port her Majeſty's Ship the Arundel, to clean and refit. From Carrickfergus of the 17th, that Captain Cammock arriv'd there the 16th in her Majeſty's Ship the Speedwell, and brought in with him the Mary Galley of St Maloes of 18 Guns and 135 Men Captain Prigeut Commander, with another of 16 Guns Commanded by one Browne (who lately took our Packet-boats) maintain'd a Fight of ſeveral Hours with the Speedwell; but Browne being very much ſhatter'd at length ſheer'd off, and then the Captain bore down upon the Mary Galley who maintain'd a cloſe Fight of half an hour before ſhe ſtruck. The Mary had 20 Men kill'd and 11 wounded; the Speedwell 1 kill'd and 16 wounded, among whom are the Lieutanant and Maſter. 'Tis not known how many the other Privateer loſt, but above 12 Men

Men were obſerv'd to come floating down from her.

We have Advice, that a French Man of War of 24 or 26 Guns being on the Coaſt, hath taken ſome of the laden Colliers abovementioned.
